REPORT

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

In submitting our Annual Report to the town, we intend to be as brief as possible, and at the same time do justice, so far as in us lies, to all of whom we speak. Owing to the sad and untimely death of one of our number, Mr. S. D. Huntoon, the Summer Schools which he visited in Districts Nos. 1, 6, 7, 8, 15, and 17 are not reported, there being no means of ascertaining by the Teachers' Registers (with one exception) the condition of the Schools.

We would not assume undue importance, nor do we claim any special attention from teachers, farther than is connected with the duties of our office; but, in kindness, we would beg leave to suggest the propriety of their recognizing such office, whoever may fill it, and complying with the regulations prescribed by law, by procuring a certificate before commencing school. Nearly all have done this; others, though well qualified, presumed too much upon former reputation, and set an example not safe to be followed by all those intending to teach.

Teachers who have returned to us imperfect Registers, are invited, if an opportunity is again presented, to carefully peruse the first page of the Register, including the note at the bottom, and heed the requirements therein contained, the neglect of which legally deprives a teacher of compensation.

Most of the schools in town have been quite successful. With few exceptions, teachers have been faithful and efficient, indicating the good sense of Prudential Committees in employing teachers of ability, regarding compensation of secondary importance. It has been often said with much truth, that a stern adherence to old customs, in keeping down the wages, deprives us of the services of many accomplished teachers who seek other fields, where their labor is better rewarded. The quantity of schooling is of small consequence when compared with the quality.

The progress of some schools is greatly retarded by the interference of parents with the regulations of the teacher, whose task is often rendered unpleasant by parents lending too ready an ear to the fancied wrongs of their children, and inconsiderately speaking in a disrespectful manner of the teacher.

Another prominent evil is a multiplicity of text-books. It is quite common to find two classes of a similar grade where there should be but one; consequently the time devoted to one of these classes is completely lost. We have endeavored to remedy this evil, and have succeeded in some degree. We refer to it with the hope that it may soon be eradicated, that no part of the labors of the teacher may be thrown away.

There are many other evils of which we might speak, but as they have been often alluded to, and are apparent to every observer, we forbear, and submit the following individual reports of the several schools in town.

We take this occasion to express our thanks to Prof. Sanborn, for his kindness in giving us needful information and advice.

DISTRICT NO. 1.—("Old Village.")

Summer School. Annette R. Huntoon, Teacher. No report. Register imperfect.

Winter School. Darwin C. Blanchard, Teacher. Mr. Blanchard's services were very acceptable to the district. His deportment in the school-room was dignified, and there seemed to be a unison of feeling between teacher and scholars. Quite a number of parents and citizens were present at the examination, clearly showing their interest in the welfare of their school. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 2.—("Emerson District.")

Summer School. Betsie A. Eastman, Teacher. Miss Eastman entered this school well knowing its wants, as she had been a resident of the district for some time previous to its commencement. At our first visit we found a quiet, orderly school, and its general appearance indicated what was to follow. At our final visit the scholars were prompt in their recitations, giving satisfaction to the writer and a large number of parents and others present. Register imperfect.

Winter School. George W. Pierce, Teacher. Mr. Pierce carried with him to this school the experience of years. We think he labored hard for the good of his pupils; but owing probably to irregularity of attendance, the school did not make the improvement we expected. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 3.—("Hatfield.")

Summer School. Eliza A. Hardy, Teacher. Miss Hardy's connection with this school the previous summer, and the vote of instructions passed by the district, to secure her services for another term, show the confidence reposed in her, by the citizens of the district. This confidence she still endeavored to merit, and was quite successful. A paper prepared by the young ladies was read at the examination, and the school-room was handsomely decorated. Register imperfect.

Winter School. William B. Fisher, Teacher. Though not so large as formerly, this school still maintains its reputation for advanced scholarship. The qualifications of the teacher were well adapted to the character of the school, and appearances at the close indicated a good degree of improvement in most of the classes. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 4.—("Sugar Hill.")

Summer School. Ellen F. Clark, Teacher. This school was commenced by Miss Georgie Morse, who had charge of it two weeks, when Miss Clark, without experience as a teacher, took her place, and taught the remainder of the term.

The district seemed well satisfied with her labors. Scholars were prompt and orderly, and the several classes made good improvement. Register perfect.

Winter School. Nellie S. French, Teacher. Punctuality and regularity of attendance are characteristics of this school. Good order is so easily maintained, that the school hours can be devoted almost entirely to the instruction of the scholars; good instruction was given, which was duly appreciated, and consequently the progress made was satisfactory. Register perfect.

DISTRICT NO. 5.—("Spofford District.")

Summer and Winter School. Mary H. Jenkins, Teacher. At our first visit, the seven scholars present appeared tolerably well, though slightly inclined to be noisy; another visit, at the expiration of seven weeks, convinced us that the condition of the school was not what it should be. Miss Jenkins, however, continued in charge of it five weeks longer, when her place was supplied by Nellie H. Putney. We have no means of stating the progress made during the latter part of the term. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 6.—("Jewett Road.")

Summer School. Kate D. Story, Teacher. No report. Register imperfect.

Winter School. George A. Eastman, Teacher. The teacher was untiring in his efforts to instill good principles into the minds of his pupils, and was generally successful. He aimed at thoroughness in teaching, and was well rewarded for his pains. Some classes made great improvement; their knowledge was not acquired solely from books, but was founded on general principles which they well understood. It is not often that scholars are favored with so good instruction, and when they are, they should properly appreciate it. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 7.—("Main Road.")

Summer school. Lizzie C. Smart, teacher. No report. Register imperfect.

Winter school. G. Henry Wiggin, teacher. This was Mr. Wiggin's first school. At the commencement of the term the teacher and scholars seemed ambitious, and indications were favorable for a prosperous school. The final examination, however, showed a smaller degree of prosperity than was anticipated. This was owing almost entirely to a defective discipline. Mr. Wiggin has the faculty of imparting instruction, in a good degree, and with more attention to the government of his school, may become a successful teacher. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 8.—("Beech Hill.")

Summer school. Abbie A. Jones, teacher. No report. Register imperfect.

Winter school. Charles Putney, teacher. Near the close of the first week of the term, we were accidentally informed that school had commenced, and proceeded immediately to visit it. We found a quiet, orderly school, taught by a faithful and efficient teacher. At the close of the term it was evident that thorough instruction had been given in nearly all the branches taught. The reputation gained by Mr. Putney in this district during the previous winter was well sustained. It is seldom that a teacher is better adapted to his school.

Scholars seemed to do right, not through fear, but out of respect, both for their teacher and themselves. This is one of the most advanced schools in town. Declamations and compositions added to the interest of the closing examination. Register perfect.

DISTRICT NO. 9.—("Dow District.")

Summer school. Maria A. Straw, teacher. Miss Straw is one of our best teachers. Her style of teaching is original and practical. She was prompt and energetic in her duties as teacher, thereby rendering her services acceptable to the district. We regret that Miss Straw had not a larger school, as she is amply qualified to take charge of our largest and most difficult schools in town. Register imperfect.

Winter school. Charles L. Brown, teacher. This school was visited only once, and closed without notifying the S. S. Committee. Consequently we can make no report. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 10.—("Contoocook, south side.")

Summer school. Helen J. Stanley, teacher. This is the largest school in town. Miss Stanley seemed at home in her vocation, and imparted much valuable instruction, proving herself, as in former years, a faithful teacher. Register perfect.

Winter school. William O. Folsom, teacher. Mr. Folsom seems to have a faculty of explaining and imparting instruction to his pupils in a clear and understanding manner, thereby enabling those who would, to make rapid improvement. There were some scholars of this description in District No. 10, while there was a part of the school, who, by irregularity of attendance and not heeding the counsels of their teacher, made little, or no improvement. We think that with the last mentioned class the teacher was too lenient. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 11.—("Clement's Hill.")

Summer school. Tamson Eastman, teacher. At our first visit to this school we found it harmonious, but before the money was expended we were called in by the district, and after due consideration, deemed it expedient to close the school. Register imperfect.

Winter school. John H. Blodgett, teacher. This district has been very unfortunate in its selection of teachers for some time past, and the school has acquired the reputation of being a hard school to manage. At our first visit to this school, which was deferred until a late period for the purpose of giving the teacher time to make harmony out of chaos, we found everything to our liking, and at our final visit we found what we anticipated, an orderly, well-drilled school. Praise is due H. C. Annis, Esq., for his selection of Winter teacher. Register perfect.

DISTRICT NO. 12.—("Stumpfield.")

No Summer school.

Winter school. Calvin H. Beck, teacher. Mr. Beck has had many years experience as a teacher; his method of instruction is highly practical, and under his kind care the school made very good progress. The scholars were not so quiet as would seem desirable under some circumstances, yet the teacher seemed to keep them under his control. Register exceedingly imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 13.—("Putney's Hill.")

Summer school. Nellie H. Putney, teacher. This was a good school. The teacher possesses a rare faculty for governing, and when governed well, a school seldom fails to be profitable. Though good government is not the only requisite for a good school, yet it is one in which teachers are more frequently deficient than in any other. Register imperfect.

Winter school. Annette R. Huntoon, teacher. The large and valuable experience of the teacher places her in the front rank of instructors. Without apparent effort on her part, the scholars were orderly, and attentive to their studies. Reading, too often neglected and imperfectly taught, received proper attention; improvement in this branch was particularly noticeable. It is seldom that we find a school so pleasant and profitable as this. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 14.—("Gage Hill.")

Summer school. Mary A. Currier, teacher. This district contains three scholars, one of which attended school. Four scholars from an adjoining district attended during a small portion of the term and were present at the close. This was Miss Currier's first attempt at teaching, and notwithstanding some slight trouble occasioned by a difference of opinion in the district, she succeeded well with the talent committed to her care. Register imperfect.

Winter school. Eliza J. Clough, teacher. A school composed of one scholar offers a very narrow field for the exhibition of a teacher's capacity. Miss Clough had previously won a good reputation, as a teacher, and in this school did all that could reasonably be expected. Whispering was "banished from the school-room." The propriety of a graded school is respectfully suggested to the consideration of the district. Register perfect.

DISTRICT NO. 16.—("Rowell's Bridge.")

Summer school. Eliza J. Clough, teacher. This school is remarkable for its quietness and the studious habits of the scholars. Good improvement was made in all classes. A class of small scholars showed that great pains had been taken with them by the teacher. This is as it should be. Small scholars are too often neglected, and much time that should be devoted to their instruction is bestowed upon larger scholars, who should do more for themselves. Register perfect.

Winter school. Eliza A. Hardy, teacher. Our final visit was necessarily made two weeks before the close of the school. At both visits the conduct of the scholars was unexceptionable, and a review of the several classes indicated that good improvement had been made. Several citizens of the district were present at the examination. Register perfect.

DISTRICT NO. 17.—("North of the village.")

Summer school. Bell P. Tyler, teacher. No report. Register imperfect.

Winter school. Bell P. Tyler, teacher. Miss Tyler commenced this school under rather unfavorable omens, as there were strong indications of "seccssion" the first week. We were called upon to visit the school, which we found in good order. Miss Tyler pursuing, in our judgment, the right course. After giving the school the advice which we thought it needed, we departed without dismissing the offending scholar from school, which we at first expected to be obliged to do. We did not visit the school again till the last week, when we found one of the best drilled schools in town. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 18.—("Buswell's Corner.")

No summer school.

Winter school. Alma J. Farnum, teacher. Miss Farnum has had much experience, and has long borne the reputation of being a good teacher. The discipline was of the highest order. At the examination the school appeared well, and as the classes passed in review before the visitors, their appearance was the best mark of commendation that could be bestowed upon the teacher and her labors. The several classes in Arithmetic marked high. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 19.—("Blackwater.")

Summer school. Olive A. Allen, teacher. Miss Allen has commendable enthusiasm for her calling and exerts herself with zeal, and an animation worthy of the magnitude of her trust. Nor can we expect any one to succeed in the business of teaching without a love for that vocation. Without this love for the occupation, the daily care of the school soon becomes tedious and commonplace to the teacher, a feeling quickly shared by the pupils. We are unable to speak of the interest of parents as no names are recorded, either of parents or citizens, in the school register. Register imperfect.

Winter term. Gilbert F. Dustin, teacher. This was Mr. Dustin's first attempt at teaching, and we think he will eventually become a first class teacher. His school appeared well at our last visit and gave evidence of having been well instructed. Register imperfect.

DISTRICT NO. 20.—("Contoocook, north side.")

Summer school. Lydia C. Goss, teacher. The parents in this district considered themselves fortunate in obtaining the services of Miss Goss, who proved well fitted for the trust, by the success of her efforts. The parents, gratified at the change wrought in the school, seem to take redoubled interest, judging from the average attendance and the number of visitors during the term. It is enough to say that Miss Goss' reputation as an energetic teacher was sustained. This school was quite energetic and efficient. The teacher retained the affection of her pupils, satisfied the district, and received the congratulations and commendations of the committee. Register imperfect.

Winter school. William A. Clough, teacher. Mr. Clough is a man of decision and energy of character. Many of the pupils in this school some time since contracted the habit of reading rapidly and consequently indistinctly, a fault somewhat difficult to amend. Mr. Clough seems to have corrected this defect quite effectually, and we have seldom seen a school to which the word perfect could be applied with so little qualification as to this. At every visit of the committee we found the order exactly up to the mark and a degree of interest and attention altogether unlooked for in this school. Register perfect.

DISTRICT NO. 21.—("Davisville Road.")

Summer and Winter schools. Sara A. Johnson, teacher. The teacher labored untiringly for the advancement of her scholars. Excellent improvement was made by them, which fully sustained her good reputation.

DISTRICT NO. 24.—("Farrington's Corner.")

This district forms a part of Union District, No. 24, in Concord.

Summer school. Melinda E. Green, teacher. No report. Register imperfect.

Winter school. Melinda E. Green, teacher. The final examination of this school was made in company with a member of the Concord Committee, in the presence of a large number of the citizens of the district. The order of the school was good. Miss Green evidently succeeded in gaining the love and respect of her pupils; they were all present at the closing exercises, and by their correct deportment and ready recitations showed that they had been well trained, and were deserving much commendation.
